

I.- What is the ambulance and mobile vet Dr Specht?

1.- Was designed for dog and cat owners who prefer high quality, compassionate in-home veterinary care to the traditional hospital visit. Working couples, families with children, multiple pet owners, the elderly or disabled have all benefited from our services.

2.- Avoids hospital waiting rooms and exposing your pet to fleas and disease. Having the veterinarian come to your home is less stressful for your pets and minimizes disruption of your busy schedule. A house call allows the veterinarian to examine your pets in their home environment and offers a more personalized approach to veterinary care.

3.- By examining your pet in its own environment, where it is more secure (and hopefully less aggressive), your house call veterinarian can better evaluate behavior and conditions which may be caused or aggravated by their environment. In addition, there is a lower risk of being exposed to diseases that may be floating around in a hospital waiting room. This is especially important for very young or very old pets that do not have good immunity and, for pets with weakened immune systems.

In addition to the benefits for your pet, a house call may make more sense for many owners. Since you won't have to gather up your pets, drive to the clinic, wait to see the veterinarian and drive back home, there is less time wasted for you.

II.- Why is better the treatment and vaccination on home?

1.- One of the biggest of those is overcoming the fear and trauma that many animals experience when taken from their home to a veterinary hospital. Many animals release pheromones (chemical scent signals) under traumatic conditions that linger in the air and may cause fear reactions in animals that detect them.

2.-By examining or vaccination your pet in its own environment, where it is more secure (and hopefully less aggressive), your house call veterinarian can better evaluate behavior and conditions which may be caused or aggravated by their environment. In addition, there is a lower risk of being exposed to diseases that may be floating around in a hospital waiting room. This is especially important for very young or very old pets that do not have good immunity and, for pets with weakened immune systems.

3.- In addition to the benefits for your pet, a house call may make more sense for many owners. Since you won't have to gather up your pets, drive to the clinic, wait to see the veterinarian and drive back home, there is less time wasted for you. Frequently, house call veterinarians offer greater freedom in scheduling appointments and will work around your schedule. Because the veterinarian is with you the whole time, you will get more personalized care.